The movement, the public, and the bombings

To many people in SDS, it was no great surprise when the bombs started going off in Berkeley, California. A lot of people had been waiting for the violence to break out in Berkeley. The fact that it did not mean that the bombing was not going to happen. People in Berkeley were not the only ones who were affected by the violence. The bombing in Berkeley was not an isolated event. The violence had spread throughout the country and was being felt by many people.

The bombing of the Peace House in San Francisco was a tragic event that killed two people and injured many more. The bombing of the Peace House was a clear message to the SDS movement that the government was not going to tolerate their protests. The SDS movement had been protesting the war in Vietnam, and the government had been trying to silence them for some time. The bombing of the Peace House was a blow to the SDS movement and a reminder that the government was not going to give up its fight against them.

The SDS movement was not the only one that was affected by the violence. The movement for peace and justice was a large and diverse movement that included many different groups and organizations. The SDS movement was just one of the groups that were fighting for peace and justice. The violence affected all of them.

The violence in Berkeley was just the beginning. The SDS movement was not going to give up its fight against the war in Vietnam. The SDS movement was going to continue to protest and to demand an end to the war. The SDS movement was going to continue to fight for peace and justice.

The violence in Berkeley was a wake-up call for the SDS movement. The SDS movement was going to have to be more careful and more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.

The SDS movement was going to have to be more strategic in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more organized and more disciplined in its protests. The SDS movement was going to have to be more determined and more committed to its cause.
ON MENTAL HOSPITALS

Mr. Winterton,

This is an opportunity to look at the problems of mental hospitals. I have been a patient in a psychiatric hospital, and I think of the things that can happen there.

Some of the patients are treated with great kindness and understanding. Others are not so fortunate. I believe that mental hospitals should be reformed so that patients can receive the care they need.

Dr. Smith,

Thank you for the opportunity to discuss mental health. I believe that more research is needed in this area to improve our understanding of mental illness and to develop effective treatments.

Senator,

I agree with the need for improved mental health services. However, I believe that more funding is required to support these programs.

Dr. Brown,

I have been working on a project to develop new therapies for mental health disorders. I believe that our society has a responsibility to invest in research and development to improve outcomes for those with mental illness.

Thank you for the opportunity to share my thoughts on this important issue.
Southern Calif. chapter reports

NAC MINUTES

submitted by Judy Kiesinger

President: Elopate F. Washington

Discussion of “Central Printing District” (CPD) ASU’s request for a press proposal for 1981-82. (This proposal could be taken as a major part of the overall center plan.)

Lawrence, Kansas, where the press media are based, has requested a monthly allowance to keep up with the inflation rate. (The labor is to be voluntary.)

Jeff Greenfield provided a file of articles by SDS people who are members. Also submitted was a list of all persons involved in the ’81-82 project, which is scheduled to be mailed to all NAC members in the near future.

Jeff Greenfield presented and received a motion in favor of a new board of directors. The motion reads as follows:

“Motion to amend the existing by-laws to provide for a new board of directors. The board would consist of at least five members, including the president and secretary, and would be elected for a term of two years. The board would be responsible for the overall direction and policy of the organization.”

The motion was seconded by Sue Smith and approved by a show of hands.

Discussion of NAC’s relationship with the National College of Arts and Sciences (NCAS).

The NAC representatives expressed their interest in continuing their relationship with the NCAS. They also discussed the possibility of forming a joint committee to work on common issues.

Jeff Greenfield discussed the possibility of establishing a new board of directors for the organization. He suggested that this would allow for more flexibility and responsiveness to the needs of the membership.
Notes on the pathology of the N.C.

by Teddy Gillan

I might have thought that my feelings toward the December N.C. were strongly personal but had almost none of the automatic, sexed, or predictable. My reaction to the news was, if anything, increased. After all, I had already discussed this matter at a meeting in this city, and I understood that it was an important issue. What I had not anticipated was that it would be a disease. A disease that would spread, and affect even the most distant parts of society. In this case, that disease was that there was a disease locality.

After some preliminary observations, it became clear that some decisions had been made, but that these decisions were not part of a larger strategy. They were, in fact, made by a small group of individuals who were trying to limit the spread of the disease. But the disease was spreading rapidly, and the only way to stop it was to take action.

One of the first steps was to create a database of all the information available about the disease. This was not an easy task, and it required a lot of work. But it was necessary. Once the database was created, it was possible to analyze the data and identify patterns.

One of the most striking patterns was that the disease seemed to be spreading faster in certain areas than in others. This was not surprising, given the fact that these areas were already suffering from other problems. But it was still a matter of concern.

Another step was to create a system for tracking the disease. This was necessary, as it was not possible to predict where the disease would spread next.

Finally, we had to consider the possibilities for treatment. This was the hardest step, as there was no cure for the disease. But we had to try.

In conclusion, the disease is spreading rapidly, and the only way to stop it is by acting now. This will require a lot of work, but it is necessary for the health of the N.C.

A December conference view by Gary Lofman

The December Conference was called not to make decisions but to gather information on the situation. From this point of view, the Conference was a fiasco, largely due to an ill-advised agenda. The Chicago lawyers who set the agenda clearly had no idea what they were doing.

The agenda was split into two parts: one on the problems of the N.C. and another on the problems of the N.E. The first part of the agenda was devoted to discussing the problems in the N.C., while the second part was devoted to discussing the problems in the N.E.

The problems in the N.C. were as follows: the N.C. had a large population of people who were not employed, and the N.C. had a large population of people who were not educated. These problems were not new, but they had been getting worse in recent years.

The problems in the N.E. were as follows: the N.E. had a large population of people who were not employed, and the N.E. had a large population of people who were not educated. These problems were not new, but they had been getting worse in recent years.

The conference was a failure, and it is clear that the same mistakes will be made again. The next step is to try to learn from these mistakes and to do better in the future.